Westheimer Energy Consultants and 3GiG Partner to Deliver Upstream Decision Support Solutions

Providing a more effective, streamlined way to drive E&P decisions

Houston, TX, USA – September 18, 2011 - Westheimer Energy Consultants Ltd., information management experts in the oil & gas industry, and 3GiG LP, a provider of business decision support technology and services, today announced a partnering agreement that will provide a more effective and streamlined way for oil & gas companies to manage their business management processes with tailored decision support technology and domain expert services.

3GiG provides web-based information management technology, via their Prospect Director™ software platform, that enables companies to intelligently organize and integrate business information and knowledge into centralized, secure, auditable systems. Westheimer brings a wide range of information and data management, business process, and upstream domain expertise consulting services to help companies develop solutions for short-term needs and for strategic, long-term transformational change. Together, Westheimer and 3GiG will design and implement tailored, enterprise-wide business information management systems to support upstream oil & gas management teams.

Kandy Lukats, CEO of 3GiG, remarked, "We are excited to work with the Westheimer team who provides the domain expertise to assist our clients in their design and implementation of decision support solutions using our Prospect Director software platform. Westheimer will help customers fully utilize the power of our technology by helping them identify broader strategic information management processes. This partnership will also expand our offerings in the UK by leveraging their presence in this key region."

Jeffrey Maskell, CEO and Senior Consultant for Petro-technical Data at Westheimer Energy Consultants commented, "Westheimer is extremely pleased to be partnering with 3GiG. Using 3GiG's Prospect Director software platform, E&P companies are able to have a clear view of their business information and knowledge, and as those companies begin to rapidly organize that information and data, Westheimer will work with them to transform and standardize information lifecycle management across their organizations."

Gary Lundeen, President and Principal Consultant at Westheimer Energy Consultants Inc., added, "Management teams are always looking for a better way to capture requisite information and knowledge in order to make faster decisions; the Westheimer—3GiG partnership offers the opportunity to deliver that a better way."
